17.000€

This townhouse near the town hall in Martos in the province of Jaén, Andalucia, Spain, is in need of renovation. With a new roof in part, a terrace with views across the town and up to the large church it will make a lovely home or holiday bolt hole. Located on the pedestrian part of a long street close to the Plaza de la Constitucion. Enter the door from the stone clad street into a living room with a room off to the right and the kitchen on the left. The kitchen door opens onto the terrace with those views over the town and has access to a basement. Stairs lead off from the living room to the first floor with a bedroom to the left, a further bedroom on the right and a bathroom through this room. The roof is new on one side of the property. Mains water and electricity need to be reinstalled. This would make a great DIY project for someone to make into a charming little home.
