This fantastic traditional property is full of character and charm with original tiling on the floors and old wooden doors throughout, anyone who loves the Andalucia style will fall in love with this property. Originally the double fronted house was one building but over the years has been divided down the middle to make two independent properties although they share the main entrance hall. The passage continues to a separate dining room and a room that would be the kitchen with a large pantry. Back inside the first floor offers a full bathroom and a small terrace which looks over the courtyard and continues on to 3 good size bedrooms.
