In the centre of the town, close to shops, bars, banks, restaurants, schools, day care centres, etc. The town owes its name to the caves that can be found there and the river that runs through it, it offers the typical tourist a wide and diverse variety of things to do. It has history, cultural and artistic heritage and a natural environment, where there is no shortage of beaches, and areas that are good for sports. The opportunity to go cave diving is a great attraction for sports enthusiasts, especially at beaches such as Cala Cristal or Embarcadero Viejo. Golf is also popular in the area with Europes first desert golf course at Desert Springs Golf Club and so is motorcycling with the European Supercross Championship taking place during the first days of August. The 2005 Mediterranean Games of rowing and canoeing were held on the manmade lake here and there are many excursions to be had both on the coast and inland. Those into sun and beach tourism will find open beaches in Cuevas del Almanzora, such as Palomares, Villaricos, El Calón or Pozo del Esparto and coves between cliffs such as Cala Panizo, Los Invencibles or Las Dolores. A short drive and you will find the beaches and attractions of San Juan de los Terreros.
