Cala Rajada Mallorca Cala Rajada under the administration of the town of Capdepera, in the northeastern part of Mallorca. It is located about eighty kilometers from the capital, Palma. It is the main coastal port and tourist center of the municipality of Capdepera. Cala Rajada is among the main tourist destinations on the island. Tourism began to arrive in these lands in the 60s; Before this Cala Rajada was a small fishing port. The original port still exists today, but it has become more of a destination for tourist and sports boats than the fishing port it once was. Cala Rajada is the closest point between Mallorca and Menorca, which is why it has played an important role in the island's economy over the years. On clear days, from here it is not difficult to see the island of Menorca and the city of Ciutadella. This area of Mallorca is famous for the ruggedness of its coastline, as well as for the large number of coves found: Capdepera has 40 kilometers of coastline with beaches that mostly have the Blue Flag for quality awarded by the Foundation. European Environmental Education. The beaches located near the town are: La Pedruscada, Son Moll, Cala Rajada, Cala Gat, l'Olla, Cala Lliteres, Cala Agulla and Cala Moltó.
