About estepona: The old town of Estepona has maintained all the character of the original Spanish pueblo with narrow streets designed for horses rather than cars and a wide selection of bars and bodegas offering traditional Spanish- as well as international food. The beach promenade has undergone a total overhaul in recent years and now gives the town a smart and clean interface with the beaches and the Mediterranean. There are numerous quality beach bars and restaurants.

Estepona also hosts its own marina. Although at a smaller scale and less glamorous than Puerto Banus it offers a great atmosphere and is surrounded by restaurants and bars. At night the pace quickens with numerous clubs giving a lively party atmosphere.

Estepona is a favourite with many loyal visitors and if you have never been it is well worth a visit and consideration for your future home.
