This imposing 199 m² townhouse, located in the picturesque white village of Luque (Córdoba), presents a perfect blend of traditional Spanish architecture and substantial living space ready for creative refurbishment. Situated on a wide, accessible street, this solid property offers spaciousness and versatile layout.

Layout and Distinctive Features: Set over three floors, the property is characterized by its light-filled rooms and classic, well-maintained features, including pristine traditional terrazzo tiled floors.

The ground floor also features a separate dining area and a newly fully tiled kitchen—pre-fitted with modern plumbing and electrics, awaiting your choice of cabinetry. A covered internal courtyard leads to a second large farmhouse-style kitchen with a fireplace and pantry, as well as a family bathroom and utility area.

First Floor (Bright Rooms & Authentic Details): A staircase with bespoke wrought-iron railings and a polished wood handrail leads to the first floor. This level comprises a spacious master bedroom with a classic wrought-iron Juliet balcony overlooking the town, a second double bedroom with courtyard views, and a fully tiled family bathroom. The hallway features a stunning handcrafted wooden fitted wardrobe.

Top Floor (Private Terrace): The upper level features a further large bedroom and a 16 m² private terrace, offering a peaceful spot to enjoy the Andalusian sun and view over the surrounding rooftops.
