The New Golden Mile is the stretch between San Pedro in Marbella and the East part of Estepona. The beaches along the New Golden Mile are notorious for its fine golden sand and the clear waters of the Mediterranean lapping gently along the shore, hence the name of the area.

The New Golden Mile has evolved over the past couple of decades and as many of the resorts along the Costa del Sol; it is divided into two geographical areas: a beachside and a hillside location.

The development of this area was carefully planned, without any high-rise constructions and respecting the environment, nothing was built too close to the shore, thus making it a sought after area to buy property.

The New Golden Mile appeals to families and retired people alike because of its location and for being situated less
