We constantly work on the quality of the interior spaces, where it is combined with an efficient use of energy resources. Our commitment to sustainability accompanies us from the beginning and marks our way forward.

Our homes

Creating sustainable homes to accompany you in this new experience. Each house involves a manufacturing process going through continuous quality controls until the end of the project.

VIVO homes are self-sufficient, capable of generating almost the same energy that they consume. These homes are designed to be self-sufficient in renewable energy, offering a considerable reduction Economic in the price of light and generating clean and healthy energy both for us and indirectly for our environment.

This type of housing maintains atmospheric conditions inside ideal, achieving high energy savings compared to traditional buildings. To achieve this phenomenon, it is important to use thermal insulation that allows these conditions to be achieved in all rooms of the house.
