Cave-house Valentina in Galera

This is a stunning cave property that is full of character. This exceptional cave is the last house at the very top of the hill. It has a large, sunny, fully enclosed patio and spectacular views. The property is located in the pretty village of Galera, a quiet Spanish village with a thriving expat community. It's a peaceful rural village where you can enjoy connection with nature without sacrificing modern comforts.

The cave house is designed in harmony with the surrounding landscape and features a large gated patio with two delightful sitting areas. The house has an open-plan kitchen-living room, two bedrooms, two bathrooms and a laundry/utility room that could be converted back into a 3rd bedroom.

The terrace is relaxed and tasteful with a comfy living area under a wooden pergola and grape vines, with wonderful distant views. There's a built-in barbecue, perfect for dining al fresco. This section features an old fashioned water pump and houses a utility closet for the solar hot water heater. On the other side of the patio next to the front door is a cosy breakfast nook and a storage space. The patio ground is partly covered with a stunning floor inlaid with quality rustic tiles.

Home Interior

The house has a small entrance hall with a storage space. There is a bright, gorgeous open-plan kitchen with a large island and a quirky, triangular-shaped living-dining room with a pellet stove. There are high ceilings, exposed wood beams and partially inlaid stone walls. A hall leads back to a beautiful modern full bathroom with a bath next to a laundry/storage room (or a third bedroom).
