Golf Course: The Jack Nicklaus designed course is a par 72 measuring 5,938 metres (6,531 yards) from the yellow tees which is relatively short by modern standards but is ideal for resort and society golf. Unusually the course is very lightly bunkered has only two lakes but one of these measure some six hectares in size and plays a strategic role on a number of key holes which wrap themselves around this vast expanse of water. While being promoted as a desert style course by the designer it actually gives a links feel with many of the holes snaking between dunes with rolling fairways and undulating greens. The par 5 holes all measure under 480 metres and so are reachable for the longer hitters wanting to give the ball a belly wobbler but danger lurks for the errant shot particularly on the opening hole. The course greens are undulating, elevated and with many run off areas on the aprons making it an interesting
